AAE 1914: Homeward Bound

Dear Collectors

Welcome to the first edition of the Australian Stamp Bulletin for 2014 and a range of stamp issues from what promises to be a very diverse program. We are also excited about a first for Australia Post with the release of a digitally printed silk minisheet for the Christmas Island Lunar New Year stamp issue.

To begin, we will recap on an event which took place in October with the release of Australia's first royal christening stamp issue.

We decided to hold back on the release of this special issue as the design needed to use images that were not immediately available.

January also introduces the seventh sign in the current cycle of the popular Christmas Island Lunar New Year series and the recipients of the 2014 Australia Post Legends Award. Each year, secrecy surrounds the recipients, but for 2014 we announced the subject area early. Cooking is such an integral part of everyday life we thought it appropriate to recognise those that have helped shape our communal palate.

A burst of colour and floral grandeur is presented in two new stamp issues – Native Orchids and Romance. With the extensive range of species in the orchid family it is difficult to select just a few. Each of the four species selected have subtle differences. It would be hard to find a gardener without an appreciation for the beauty of the rose. And what better symbol of "romance". The issue of two stamps presents the ever-popular flower and a graphic design of hearts.

The remaining issue in this edition covers an Australian exploration hero and the final stamp issue in the four-year series covering the Australasian Antarctic Expedition 1911–14. Homeward Bound looks at the return of the surviving expedition party members. A highlight of this last issue in the series is the combined sheetlet presentation pack.

Four generations of the Royal Family attended the christening of His Royal Highness Prince George Alexander Louis of Cambridge in a ceremony performed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Justin Welby, in October 2013. Prince George was christened in the silver-gilt Lily Font which was made in 1840 for Queen Victoria's first child, Princess Victoria and wore the replica of the 172-year-old Royal Christening Robe. Water from the Jordan River, where Christ was baptised by John the Baptist was used and two anthems were performed by the choir of Her Majesty's Chapel Royal. Guests included George's grandparents, the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, his grandfather the Prince of Wales, his uncle Prince Harry, and the immediate family of the Duchess of Cambridge.

Among the seven god-parents were Zara Tindall, a cousin to the Duke of Cambridge, and personal friends, including those of the Duke's mother Diana, Princess of Wales.

A series of official photographs was taken after the ceremony by photographer Jason Bell, one of which is used for the stamp design. Taken in the Morning Room of Clarence House, another photo shows the three future kings of the United Kingdom, together with the current monarch, Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

The Chinese zodiac uses animal signs to date the years over a 12-year cycle and 2014 is the Year of the Horse. For festive seasons, such as New Year, the Chinese lunar calendar is the determining factor.

The seventh sign in the cycle, the Horse symbolises perception and power and the Chinese idiom – lǎomǎshītū – literally means “an old horse knows the way”: experience is valuable.

Those born in the Year of the Horse are said to be intuitive, practical and quick-witted. Horses make excellent teachers, politicians and performers. Some famous Horses include Rembrandt, Chopin, Sir Paul McCartney and Barbra Streisand. Horse Years over the last century were 1906, 1918, 1930, 1942, 1954, 1966, 1978, 1990 and 2002.

Australian Legends of Cooking

For nearly two decades the Australia Post Australian Legends Award has been one of the stamp issues to usher in the stamp program for the new calendar year, coinciding with January's Australia Day celebrations. In 2014, this annual award will recognise a select group of game-changers in Australia's food culture. These individuals have been extraordinary for their part in shaping Australia's palate and placing it on the international map of gastronomy.

For the first time since the award was established, public opinion has had a bearing on the selection of the Legends. Thousands of Australians participated by voting for their favourite movers and shakers in the scene, the shortlist compiled by an expert panel.

The Australian Legends of Cooking will be announced on 17 January 2014.

Known for their exquisite flowers, orchids are the largest family of flowering plants in the world, with more than 30,000 species identified. Distributed in most countries, they are prolific in tropical regions. Australia has around 1,300 orchid species, with 95 per cent of these not found anywhere else in the world.

Orchids are either terrestrial, having an underground root system, or epiphytic, where they grow on host trees for support. A subset of epiphytic orchids is the lithophytic orchid, which grows on exposed rocks.

Golden Rock Orchid Dockrillia striolata ssp. Chrysantha

Also called the Streaked Rock Orchid, this lithophytic species is found in south-eastern Australia. The subspecies chrysantha is endemic to Tasmania, and has fragrant, creamy yellow flowers. Tasmania has about 210 species of native orchids.

Bee Orchid Caladenia discoides

This terrestrial orchid, also called the Dancing Spider Orchid, is endemic to Western Australia. The name means “club-bearing” and refers to the broad, flat, deeply fringed labellum.

Orange Blossom Orchid Sarcochilus falcatus

The scent and shape of this orchid's flowers are similar to orange blossoms. It is distributed throughout eastern Australia up to Cape York Peninsula.

Shirt Orchid Thelymitra campanulata

Also called the Bell Sun Orchid, this orchid is endemic to the south-west of Western Australia. Two distinctive features have contributed to its common names: the small flowers often have a bell-shaped appearance, and the fine striping on petals and sepals.

Many orchids make very good house plants. They are prized for their stunning appearance, low maintenance needs and are functionally decorative.

According to historians, the English word “romance” was developed from a vernacular dialect within French language meaning “verse narrative”, referring to the style of speech and writing of the elite classes of Europe.

Originally, the word was an adverb of the Latin Romanicus, meaning “of the Roman style.”

Other meanings developed over time, with a romantic tryst seen as adventurous and passionate.

The modern meaning of romance is an expression of love or desire. The stamp designs in this issue are perfect for sending written expressions of such sentiments.
