Dear Collectors

As Australia gears up for this year's Commonwealth Games, to be held on Queensland's Gold Coast, we at Philatelic wish participating Australian athletes every success.

Michael Zsolt
Manager, Philatelic Australia Post

We are proud to release the official stamp issue to mark the Commonwealth Games in Queensland. You'll find the official stamp design and associated products outlined on page 14.

Details of the 2018 Australia Post Australian Legends can be found on page 4. The stamp issue was released on 18 January and features some household names of the small screen. Each Legend continues to charm and entertain Australian audiences through their unique style of performance.

This edition also introduces some food labels to which we can all relate. Vintage Jam Labels is a colourful stamp issue that looks back on the era of tinned jam production in Australia and the use of beautiful labelling to market these products.

Two stamp releases in March feature fauna from Australia and the Australian Antarctic Territory. The first of these represents four of Australia's 19 species of finch.

These small birds with their distinct markings can be found in various habitats, with the Zebra Finch found across most of Australia. The second features the Crabbeater Seal, the most numerous of the seal species found in the Antarctic. The four stamps illustrate aspects and behaviours of these fascinating animals.

The fifth and final stamp issue in the series titled A Century of Service focuses on the commemoration of Australian service personnel through war memorials. The stamps show national and overseas war memorials, and these represent the similar places of memorialisation that can be found in our major cities and in suburbs and country towns.

In April we celebrate the Queen's 92nd birthday with the annual Queen's Birthday issue. Also for release in April is the Norfolk Island Wrasses stamp issue, featuring a selection of these brilliantly coloured fish.

Like the labels pasted onto fruit boxes, jam tin labels are a nostalgic and highly collectable form of ephemera.

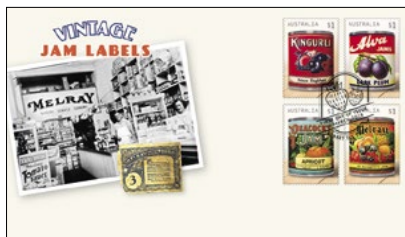

George Peacock (1824–1900) set up a small factory in Hobart, Tasmania, in 1861. This is considered the start of commercial jam production in Australia on a factory scale. It was at Peacock's factory where a young Henry Jones (1862–1926) got a job, aged 12, on the factory floor. "Jam Tin Jones" went on to develop his famous "IXL" brand.

Over in Houghton, South Australia, George McEwin (1815–1885) founded a jam factory, in 1863, making use of his own orchard's excess fruit and much of the fruit of the region. His many popular brands included Glen Ewin and Kingurli.

Grocers, buyers groups and co-operatives also sold their own brand of jam such as the CWS brand of the NSW Cooperative Wholesale Society, Moran and Cato, and Melray.

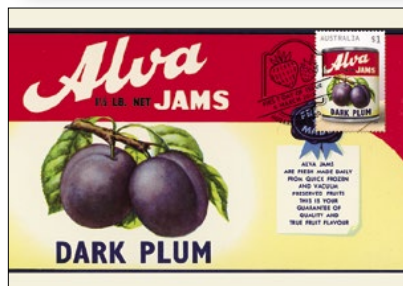

Food-producing states were dotted with smaller-scale jam manufacturers. Alva Jams was a popular brand, set up by W H Johnson Jams Pty Ltd of Melbourne. It was eventually taken over by Henry Jones IXL (itself taken over by Elders) during the 1970s, a period of industry-wide decline.

The Zebra Finch occupies varied habitat and can be found in suburban backyards

Australia has 19 species of this grouping of small bird, including mannikins and firetails, and this stamp issue features just four.

As its name suggests, the Blue-faced Parrot-Finch (Erythrura trichroa) is distinctive in appearance. Juveniles do not have the blue face and only an inkling of what will develop into the scarlet rump and tail areas of adult birds.

The Double-barred Finch (Taeniopygia bichenovii) takes its name from the two narrow black bands across its white chest, the top band encircling much of its face.

The brightly coloured Star Finch (Neochmia ruficauda) exhibits much individual variation in its plumage. Although it is coloured mainly olive green with a scarlet face and white spots on its underparts and tail coverts, both the scarlet and the spots can vary.

The Zebra Finch (Taeniopygia guttata) is named for the adult male's finely barred black-and-white chest and more heavily barred tail. It also has a conspicuous orange ear patch below a blue-grey brow, and a bright orange beak. This species is by far the most numerous finch in Australia.

For the first time in the history of a major multi-sport Games there will be an equal number of medal events for men and women.

The Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games (GC2018), which will take place 4–15 April, will be the fifth occasion Australia has played host to the “Friendly Games”. The first Australian Games was in Sydney in 1938, followed by Perth in 1962, Brisbane in 1982 and Melbourne in 2006.

The very first Commonwealth Games (then known as the British Empire Games) was held in Canada in 1930. The number of sports has grown over the years. The first Games included six sports; in 2018 there will be 18 sports and seven para-sports contested. Sports include Aquatics, Athletics, Badminton, Basketball, Beach Volleyball, Boxing, Cycling, Gymnastics, Hockey, Lawn Bowls, Netball, Rugby Sevens, Shooting, Squash, Table Tennis, Triathlon, Weightlifting and Wrestling.

Para-sports include Athletics, Swimming, Lawn Bowls, Powerlifting, Track Cycling, Table Tennis and Triathlon. GC2018 will set a new Commonwealth Games record by hosting up to 300 para-athletes and 38 medal events across these seven sports.

The Crabeater Seal can dive to around 600 metres and for periods of about 25 minutes.

This stamp issue focuses on the Crabeater Seal (Lobodon carcinophaga), which is thought to be the most numerous of the six seal species found in Antarctica. It has a circumpolar distribution and is largely restricted to the pack-ice zone of Antarctica, which fluctuates in area as the pack-ice expands and contracts with the seasons. While it has been observed congregating in large groups, the Crabeater Seal is more commonly observed in groups of around three or as a solitary animal, partly the result of it occupying floating pack-ice, which can break into smaller floes.

The four stamps in this issue illustrate some aspects and behaviours of the Crabeater Seal: the female gives birth to a single pup each spring, which it raises alone; the species is generally a solitary animal or congregates in small groups; and while it is ungainly on ice, the Crabeater has great skill in the water. It can dive to around 600 metres and for periods of about 25 minutes.

The Australian War Memorial serves as the centre for national commemorations and helps shape the way Australians remember, interpret and understand the Australian experience of war.

War Memorials is the fifth and final stamp issue in the Century of Service series. Each issue focuses on a different theme related to Australian experience of war across the last century. This issue looks at memorials both in Australia and internationally and indicates the various forms these memorials take.

War memorials sprang up across Australia following the huge losses sustained in WWI, driven in part because people could not visit the gravesites of their dead. Many public memorials were located in prominent and accessible locations and quickly became the focus for Anzac Day and Remembrance Day services.

Australian states and territories have a principal memorial that serves as a permanent shrine for major commemorative ceremonies and there are also memorials throughout regional areas of the country.

A number of war memorials dedicated to Australian losses in war can be found in other countries, including at Gallipoli in Turkey, Passchendaele in Belgium, Fromelles and Villers-Bretonneux in France, in Papua New Guinea, in Thailand and in other parts of the globe where Australian forces have served.

A special medallion cover has been produced that features the Queen Elizabeth rose, as part of this issue's product range.

In 2018, we mark the 92nd birthday of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II with two designs that feature a floral theme. On the domestic-rate stamp, the Queen is pictured during her 90th birthday celebrations in April 2016. The Queen was photographed arriving to open the Alexandra Gardens Bandstand, in Windsor, as part of a day of visits with Prince Philip. On the international-rate stamp, the Queen is attending a 2015 service to mark Commonwealth Day – the celebration of the Commonwealth of Nations.

The domestic stamp also features a close-up photograph of the 'Queen Elizabeth' (also known as 'Queen of England') – a tall grandiflora rose introduced in 1954. The Queen Elizabeth rose was named to recognise the Queen's ascension to the British throne in 1952 and subsequent coronation in 1953.

The minisheet scene contains a collection of colourful wrasse species, commonly found in the reef.

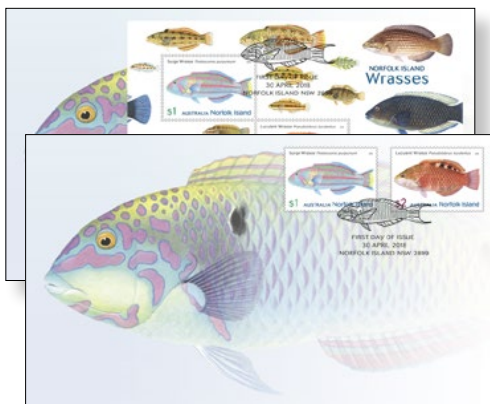

The reef at Emily Bay, Norfolk Island is a popular spot for snorkelling, due to its clear water and an abundance of fish species.

The most predominant in terms of individual species are wrasses (Labridae) – a large and often brightly coloured family of fish that inhabit coral reefs and other temperate waters.

As each wrasse species has differing colour patterns across male, female and (sometimes) juveniles, from 17 species in the reef there are almost 50 spectacular colour variations.

The stamps in this issue, illustrated by renowned painter, naturalist and zoologist Roger Swainston, feature the vividly coloured adult male Surge Wrasse (Thalassoma purpuraceum) and the striking orange-red Luculent Wrasse (Pseudolabrus luculentus).

Set up a standing order in 2018

Having a standing order makes collecting new Australian stamps simple, and it's also easy to set up. You can download the form from auspostcollectables.com.au

The label features a large, ornate red 'P' on the left, which is part of the 'PEACOCK' brand name. The 'P' has a decorative arrow-like tail. To the right of the 'P', the word 'EACOCK' is written in red, blocky capital letters. Below this, the word 'JAM' is written in large, white, stylized capital letters with a black outline, set against a blue rectangular background. The entire label is framed by a decorative border of green leaves and apricots. A large, ripe apricot is prominently displayed in the lower right, and another smaller one is visible in the lower left. The background of the label is a light blue with a fine grid pattern.
